Menlo Park Churches Slate Special Christmas Rites

Menlo Park residents early this week were putting the finishing touches on arangements for the observance of Christmas, 1958, as the holiday season drew toward its climax.

Bond Decision Due Dec. 30th

In order to meet a legal time table for placing a capital improvement bond issue before the voters of Menlo Park on April 14, the city council last week marked its calendar for Dec. 30 as the meeting of decision.

During the past several months, the city has been discussing needs of a community center, youth center, police station and other civic buildings. To date, only agreement has been on a proposed bond issue of $600,000 for an underpass on Willow road.

At Tuesday's session, City Manager John A. Johnson read a letter from the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Helen Hildreth, president, offering the city support for any discussion of a youth center.

The letter referred to a survey conducted last June among students at Menlo-Atherton High School which assured the council of the interest of youth of the community in having a center.

The letter prompted Councilman Guy Plaisted to comment, "I read the questionnaire (and its answers), but I wonder how many of the people who answered were residents of Menlo Park, and how many from other areas. We have no way of knowing."

"I know there's an interest in it (youth center) but I'm still not convinced that the interest is built up to a point where they can really crystallize where the need is," Plaisted continued.

When Councilman Ira Bonde replied that this was the job of the "city itself," Plaisted added, "I'm sure I can't sit here and crystallize it." We make the decision, but we should be guided by evidence produced on what the need is. The recreation commission has put priority on playground development."

LEGAL OPINION

When Mayor William Lawson asked City Attorney James T. O'Keefe for information on the time-table necessary to assure additional bond proposals being on the April ballot (with the underpass) he was advised that "legal machinery should be in motion the first of January."

City Manager John R. Johnson reported that the three banks in the area had each presented information on costs and interest rates for short term loans of varying amounts. He pointed out that a legal opinion on the ability of the city tomorrow on a chort term basis is yet to come from the city's bonding company.

Councilman Bonde, "favoring something more than a youth center, pointed out, "A community center won't solve everything, but it is one of those things that help make the town. The recreation commission thinks it's forthcoming."

Bonde's use of the survey report to show that 343 for the respondents at the high school lived in the city and 357 lived outside was challenged again by Councilman Plaisted who noted:

"We still don't know how those who lived inside the city answered on the specific question."

Bonde's final question concerned the ability of the city to errect the needed police station from general funds, and was advised by the City manager that there was no money for such a program.

There's a Big Job Ahead . . .

. . . for librarian Mrs. Carol Clifford of Woodside High School, since more than in the course of a drive sponsored by 2000 books were donated by area residents members of the school's freshman class. All students in the school, working as English class units ,scoured the countryside and their parents' libraries to collect the volumes, most of which are useable, according to Mrs. Clifford. The drive ended Thursday. Looking over the loot are, left to right, Bev Edwards, freshman class secretary; Mike Wright, treasurer; Margaret Inouye, vice-president and Scott Campbell, president of the freshman class. —Recorder photo

Housewife Foils Gun Toting Caller

A 50-year-old East Palo Alto housewife who was disturbed from her sleep early last Wednesday morning by a gun-toting visitor, saved herself and the family car by a quick slam of the door.

Mrs. Hazel Cassens, 50, of 1 Camellia court, told sheriff's deputies, later, that her husband had left for work around 6:30 a.m.,

At 8 a.m. she was aroused from her sleep by a loud knock on the door from a man who described himself as the "garbage man."

When Mrs. Cassens opened the door the man pressed a gun into her left side and demanded, "Give me your car keys."

Hastily, she slammed the door in his face and locked it. He shouted,

"If you call the cops, I'll shoot you. I'll be back in five minutes with a friend."

Police Patrol Due for One Car Increase

Sheriff Earl T. Whitmore announced this week that officials of San Mateo County hope to increase policing patrol in the East Palo Alto area on Feb. 1.

The sheriff said that successful formation of the new police district, voted Dec. 16 by the board of supervisors, assured residents of complete patrol on July 1 next year.

As of February, the county plans to add at least one patrol car to present service in the area. Whitmore said he hoped to have the car manned with one deputy during the daytime hours and two men at night.

Insamuch as funds for the increased patrol will not be available until the beginning of the new tax year (July 1), costs of the new service will be paid from general county funds, Whitmore explained.

Atherton, Menlo Police Warn Drivers of Holiday Dangers

Menlo Park and Atherton police departments are participating fully in the two-pronged attack of the California Highway Patrol and the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control in their announced campaign against the drinking driver over the holidays.

And together with their announcement that they will be most particularly vigilant against drinking drivers, Police Chiefs George Potter and Leroy Hubbard issued a couple of words of caution for late Christmas shoppers and others caught up in the general rush of the holiday season.

"Many mothers," explained Chief Potter, "are going to find themselves rushing about last-minute errands, doing shopping and other things which require them to take to the road during early evening hours.

"It's important, as a matter of safety, that they remember courtesy to other drivers, many of whom might be on exactly the same kind of a mission.

"The early evening hours are the most dangerous at any time of the year," Chief Potter went on. "This is mainly because drivers don't realize how bad visibility gets as the sun fades; some have a pretty loose interpretation of the law regarding when to turn headlights on.

"During the Christmas season, with schools out for the holidays, we can expect children on bicycles and on foot to be around, too," he said.

"As a practical matter, we ask parents to keep their children off the street. Some will be out until dark in spite of this warning; these are the ones most in danger.

"The highway patrol and ABC announced their combined campaign for the Christmas-New Year period early this month. They are combining an educational campaign using television programs, newspaper releases, speeches, personal contacts and other media to get the message across:

"If you drink, don't drive; if you drive, don't drink."

Retail Sales Up Here over '57 Downtown Merchants Report

Council Seeks Money

At Tuesday night's city council session, Menlo Park City Attorney James T. O'Keefe was to advise members that the city cannot borrow funds on a short term basis for construction of major capital improvement projects.

O'Keefe was to report that the city's bonding firm advises that state constitutional provisions prohibit a municipality from borowing more than one year's anticipated revenue without taking the proposal to a vote of the people.

The advice means that Menlo Park must finance a needed police station and community recreation building either through a bond issue or by accumulating funds over a period of years.

Although the council has already agreed to place a $600,000 bond issue for construction of an underpass on Willow Road before voters next April, it has not reached agreement on other possible bond issues. Last week, it was decided that issues to go on the April ballot would be determined next Tuesday, Dec. 30.

Other agenda items included acceptance of a deed from Bohannon Industrial Tract for a ten-foot strip of land near the pumping station; and discussion of a request from the Palo Alto Chamber of Commerce that Willow road be made a state road connecting with Sand Hill road.

Blaze Damages Apartment Here

Four pieces of equipment from the Menlo Park Fire Protection District responded to a fire Saturday night at 9:44 p.m. at 295 Waverley street.

The blaze, which presumably started from a cigarete in the apartment of Robert A. Wenzel, caused an estimated $500 damage to contents and $2000 to the building.

Firemen were able to confine the blaze to the one unit. Last truck returned to the station at 11:55 p.m.

Recorder:

DAY OFF

This issue of the Menlo Park Recorder, although bearing its regular Thursday dateline, is being distributed two days early in order to give area residents a chance to take advantage of last-minute pre-Christmas shopping values advertised by local merchants.

Next week, too, the Recorder will be distribtued on Tuesday. Next week's deadlines will again be earlier than normal to meet the earlier publication schedule.

Deadline for Want Ads will be 2 p.m. Saturday.

The office of the Recorder will be closed all day Wednesday, Dec. 24, as well as Thursday, Christmas day.

Baptist Unit Gets Permit For Land Use

The county planning commission has issued a use permit to the Atherton Baptist Fellowship for construction of a church at Camino a los Cerros and Altschul avenue and master planning for the installation is already underway.

The two-acre site on which the church is to build is bounded on two sides by the town of Atherton, and on the third by Sharon Heights. It is anticipated that a building now on the property can be converted for use by the congregation, by next April or May.

And aiming for rapid development of the new place of Worship the Rev. Robert Wheaton, pastor, has designated "A New Church Faces a New Year," as his sermon topic for next Sunday, when the congregation meets for its 11 a.m. service next Sunday at Encinal school.

The Fellowship was first organized last September, according to Everett Carlson of Atherton, lay leader who has spearheaded the drive for a new Baptist church to serve the area between Redwood City and Menlo Park.

Formal organization of the new church has been set for the first Sunday in January.

An architect has already been named to develop a "master plan" for development

C of C Spot Check

Retail sales in downtown Menlo Park are higher during the present pre-Christmas season than they were last year, a spot check by the Chamber of Commerce showed Monday.

Chamber secretary-manager Jack Flynn said that interviews with nine store-owners got a unanimous answer that business was better than the previous season. There were no dissents against this opinion, he said.

Flynn made his "spot check" in a variety of specialized business houses including a hardware, gifts, banking, clothing, and the like.

One merchant told him that the number of customers present didn't seem to him to be as large as that of last year, but expenditure per customer appeared greater.

There appeared to be less "milling around" and indecision on the part of buyers than in 1957, he went on.

"Thanks to the foresighted purchase and leasing of new municipal offstreet parking space during the year, and the adoption of two-hour parking limits in some areas, the down town business area is in better condition to handle customer parking and traffic than in previous years," Flynn went on.

Traffic Flow Appears Smooth

Parking and traffic control problems did not appear serious late last week although volume of shopper traffic in downtown Menlo Park appeared to be at near record volumes. Merchants in the business area reported that everything appeared to be going smoothly, and police confirmed this by reporting that there were no accidents of any sort in that portion of the city.

Traffic signals at University drive and Santa Cruz avenue, which had drawn complaints when first installed on the basis that they were "confusing," were changed over several weeks ago

Survey:

Menlo Park Held Up Well in Recession

(Special to the Recorder Gazette)

NEW YORK—New figures, recently released, throw the first light on just how Menlo Park held up during the 1957-58 recession. The answer, in a nutshell, is—better than most communities.

Retail business locally continued at a surprisingly good pace. Although personal income declined during the second half of 1957, it came back well in the first six months of this year, due in part to increased unemployment insurance payments and federal old-age pensions. Contributing to it also was a 10 per cent hike in pay to government employees and automatic raises in some industries.

The survey, which measures the economic strength of localities throughout the country, is for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1958. It was compiled by the Standard Rate and Data Service.

Residents of Menlo Park, it shows, had a net income in the year, after payment of taxes, of $61,433,000.

Per household, determined by dividing this amount by the number of households, it represented spendable income of $9048.

It was more than the $5983 per household reported for the United States and the $6290 for the Pacific States.

In Menlo Park, as in most other places, a considerable amount of this purchasing power was withheld from the market, the survey indicated. People apparently hesitated going into big item buying, such as automobiles and large electrical appliances, which are usually bought on the installment plan.

They spent more on food and soft goods and put the rest of it into savings. At the same time, they were working down their accumulated debt, putting themselves into a sounder financial position.

Even so, retail stores locally accounted for a sturdy $24,915,000 in the year, notes the SRDS report.

Oak Court Annex Vote Is Tuesday

An estimated 200 residents of the Oak Court area are eligible to vote next Tuesday, Dec. 30, on the issue of whether or not the area should annex to the City of Menlo Park.

One polling place has been established for the annexation election, at the O'Connor school on Elliott drive, near Oak court. It will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Officers in charge of the voting will be Mrs. Anne D. Browne, inspector; Mrs. Gladys M. Vitali, judge, and Mrs. Nancy H. Rockwell and Mrs. Agnes C. Mosely, clerks.

Area proposed for annexation includes approximately 50 cres. It is bounded by Menalto avenue, Woodland avenue, and portions of O'Connor street and Oak court.

No protests to the annexation, either oral or written, have been filed with Menlo Park city officials during previous hearings and discussions.

Mail on Schedule, Postmaster Says

Menlo Park Postmaster Harry B. Morey reports that Christmas mails were all "up" to date as of Monday this week. Barring any unforeseen rush, the local office is running "smoother than any previous year," Morey added.

The postmaster credited local customers with getting their packages and cards underway earlier than usual. He also noted that a special regional expediting schedule has been of major assistance in keeping the volume going.

Even the dogs have gotten into the Christmas spirit. Morey reports that both the regular and extra carriers this season have been unmolested, while making deliveries.

Receipts for the season are expected to go over $650,000, Morey said.

Deadline: Dec. 26

Realtors Issue Final Call for Entries in Decorating Contest

Response to the Menlo Park-Atherton Board of Realtors' annual invitation to join their home decorating contest started to make itself felt late last week, as more than a dozen home-owners responded by return mail.

There's still time for entries to send in coupons or to telephone their desire to have their outdoor Yuletide displays judged, however, commented Realtor Board Secretary-Manager Gary Williams, who pointed out that deadline for registering is 5 p.m. Dec. 26.

"There is no obligation for entering," he reiterated. "In this contest, we seek to reward those whose pride in their homes encourages them to do something more or less unusual or original in the way of decorating during the holidays."

First prize will be $25, second, $15, and third $10.

Judges for the affair have been named, Williams continued. They will meet immediately after the deadline for filing, and discuss a route which will take them past all homes in the contest. The judging is open to any resident in the Menlo Park Fire District.

The judges will include Fred Ballentine, president of the Board of Realtors; Fielding McDearmon, president of the Chamber of Commerce and Corning McKennee, head of the art department at Menlo-Atherton High School.

Williams noted that the tour will be made at an unannounced hour some time Friday or Saturday night. The evening tour is considered the best, he said, because it allows judges to see lighting displays more fully.

Persons wishing to join the contest should mail or take the coupon printed below either to the Board of Realtors office at 631 Menlo avenue, or to the office of the Menlo Park Recorder, 640 Roble avenue.

SRI 'Greeters' Have to Know the Answers

MRS. BETH WESTFALL
Greets SRI's visitors at the door.

Stanford Research Institute houses hundreds of experts in scores of sciences; they're called upon to answer thousands of introcate questions every day.

Not all of the questions that come their way are presented by clients or associates of the institution; many come fro lay people who have partic lar problems which they seem to feel require expert advice.

And not all of the questions asked are sensible. A good many of them are authored by what SRI receptionists and telephone operators call "psychoceramics"—the crackpots, in other words.

It's quite a chore for them to route the sensible, meaningful calls to the proper scientists.

And it takes an expert knowledge of human nature to pass on whether or not a visitor who wants to see a worker in a particular science really has a legitimate reason for doing so, or not.

Heading the team of five telephone operators who run the huge switchboard at SRI is Mrs. Josephine Greene, a veteran of 20 years in telephony.

She and the four girls who work with her have to keep track of particular scientists, whether they're in the building or out of it, or overseas or on leave; they have to know who can give the same answers in case of various inquiries; and they have to know who can answer a general question which might not fit into any particular science at all.

MEETS VISITORS

At SRI's main desk is Mrs. Bets Westfall, who has worked at SRI for five and a half years. During that time she's met hundreds of casual visitors: some want to tour special parts of the building, some have "inventions," some want to aid the cause of science in a variety of ways; some are just curious and want to look around.

"If they can convince me that their business is legitimate, they're usually referred to a scientist or other specialist," Mrs. Westfall explains.

There are other alternatives for dealing with other cases. Where people come in and want tours of various kinds, the public relations department is contacted. In others, the visitors are referred to outside agencies.

"For instance, we get a lot of visits from people who want us to test something for them. We refer them to private testing agencies,

"I remember one man," Mrs. Westfall went on, "who wanted us to test a moisture collecting diaper which, he said wouldn't have to be changed as often as the usual one.

Hard-Working Core . . .
. . . of Stanford Research Institute's communications system is the switchboard shown above, which handles calls for 1400 local lines and 35 incoming trunk lines. Five girls operate the installation during business hours. Shown on duty are, front to rear, Mrs. Margaret Benes; Mrs. Jo Greene, who is in charge of the board; Mrs. Lynn Bentz and Mrs. Dorothy Hollis.

to see is the "mouse incinerator." Mrs. Westfall says she's had a great many visits from people who want to see how animals used in experiments are disposed off.

Mrs. Greene and members

"We couldn't help him with any testing or advice ,but I see that he's apparently patented the device ,because it's on the market."

Oddly, one of the devices which people think they want of her crew gets lots of calls regarding mice, but of a different sort.

"Every spring, after Easter time, we get calls from people who want to give us white mice," she explains. "Apparently every year large numbers of children get them for pets, and after a while they want to get rid of them because the novelty wears off."

Mrs. Westfall and Mrs. Greene agree on one thing: The Institute staff always tries to encourage young, budding scientists.

"We have several men on the staff who are fathers themselves and who know how hard it can be for a youngster to get some particular bit of information," Mrs. Greene explains.

"So whenever we get a call from a high school student or other persons of a reasonable age with a reasonable request, we refer him to the specialist we feel can do him the most good.

"Many of our people are willing to spend a great deal of time with this sort of thing."

There are other calls:

Mrs. Green recalls the one from a woman whose washing machine didn't work; she was referred to the public relations department for an explanation that SRI wasn't in a position to comment on whether it was a good or bad machine.

And others call up to ask about donating an eye, or a body, to the Institute, for the benefit of science. These are referred to Stanford University medical school.

VARIED VISITORS

Mrs. Westfall knows some other tales: Like the person who brought in a sample of soil from his back yard; because he wanted it analyzed to learn if maybe there wasn't a reason the flowers didn't grow bigger.

There was the lady who was sure her husband had been poisoned and wanted SRI to run an autopsy; she was referred to the coroner.

There was another, who called at the front desk one day and who said she had "solved the problem of air pollution." More talk produced the fact that had also invented a new kind of straitjacket—while a patient in a mental hospital.

"We try to help all of our visitors in whatever way we can within the limits of government or client security," a public information officer explains. "When the Sputniks were new, we traced them and were constantly being contacted by newspapers for information about them.

"We don't have any standadr procedure for tours, but here again, it's a matter of the merit some groups and individuals ' have legitimate reasons for wanting to visit some part of the operation, and we do what we can."

New Math Program Ready For Seventh Grade Class

Plans for giving present seventh graders of the Ravenswood Elementary school district an opportunity to take one full year of algebra during their eighth grade year have been completed by school officials and will go into effect shortly after the first of the year.

Phil Smith, Director of Curriculum for the district, announced yesterday that the new program has been worked out by himself, Superintendent Stanley O. Schnepple, James Welch and Ronald Weaver. It has been approved by curriculum directors of the Sequoia Union High School district.

According to Smith, the 423 students now in the seventh grade at Menlo Oaks and Green Oaks schools will all be scheduled for arithmetic classes during the same period for the remainder of the current school year.

Those students who have shown achievement in arithmetic, based on tests already taken and in the judgement of their instructors, will be eligible for an accelerated program. They will complete arithmetic studies for both seventh and eighth grades between now and next June.

This group of students will then go on to a full year of algebra next year, Smith explained.

To date there is no way of knowing how many students will be eligible for the special arithmetic program. Smith pointed out that basis of selection for the accelerated program is purely achievement within the arithmetic program, and had no connection with general intelligence reports or other grades.

There are seven seventh grade classrooms at Menlo Oaks and 11 at Green Oaks. Yet to be worked out is a time schedule for the coordinated program. Smith pointed out that district students are already scheduled in special homemaking, shop, and music programs and that it may be difficult to find one period available for the accelerated arithmetic program.

Algebra learned in the eighth grade under the new program will be acceptable to the University of California under a new ruling, he noted. Text for the course has been selected by representatives of the high school district and the course is planned so as to be equal to that given during high school.

The new program is one of several on which elementary school officials are working as a direct result of the work of an inter-district Articulation Committee. Smith, who is chairman of the elementary district section of the committee, reports that plans have been made to get a greater "meshing" of curriculums at elementary and high school levels.

JOINS THE ARMY

Irven W. Roe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Roe of 132 Santa Maria avenue in Menlo Park, has enlisted in the armored corps of the U.S. army, it was announced this week by Master Sergeant John L. Hulpieu, in charge of the county recruiting substation.

ROTARIANS HOLD 'ROUND TABLE'

Dec. 24 meeting of the Menlo Park Rotary club was to have taken the form of a Round Table discussion, at Cook's seafood restaurant.

Nearness of the Christmas holiday precluded the arrangement of a more formal program, according to Rotary club officers.

Club Presents Christmas Sing

Belle Haven Glee Club of 37 voices was to sing the Fred Waring arrangement of "The Night Before Christmas" last night at the special Christmas sing.

The group of fifth and sixth grade students is directed by Miss Bethany Hoot.

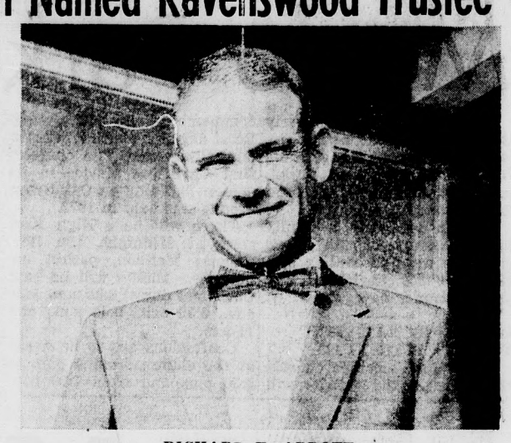
Sharon Smith, DeLois Stamper, Edna Washington, Janet Williams, Norman Wolfer, Murphy Winston, Pat Saign, Saron Rummel, David Previni, John Morgan, Ralph Knowles, Keith Kroll, Bobby Jordan, Cliff Johnson, Erling Hoifjeld, Mickey Davis, Jackie Davis and Don Brown.

ANNUAL DANCE during the Christmas season for members of the seventh grade class at Encinal School was held last Friday. Mrs. Smith's class hosted the event, assisted by members of other classes.

In Recent Action:

Richard Abbott Named Ravenswood Trustee



RICHARD E. ABBOTT
New Trustee

Richard E. Abbott, a sales engineer for General Electric Co., was named as trustee in the Ravenswood Elementary School District by board action last week. He fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Francis W. Pearson Jr. who has moved from the community.

Abbott and his family live at 321 Nova lane, Menlo Park, and have been residents of the area for seven years. A native of San Jose, he received his engineering degree from the University of California at Berkeley. During World War II, he served with the U.S. Navy in the Pacific theater as a lieutenant (j.g.).

The new school trustee has been employed by GE for 11 years. He is a member of two honorary engineering fraternities, the Foothills Tennis and Swimming Club, and has been active as an advisor to Junior Achievement program, and as a member of the junior chamber of commerce.

He and his wife, who is a Stanford graduate, have four children: Carol, 11, and Christine 8 (both students at Willow School), Priscilla, 4, and Richard, 7 months.

Youngster Starts House Fire with Cigaret Lighter

An estimated $250 damage resulted early Saturday from a fire set by as mall boy who had found his mother's cigaret lighter.

The fire, at the home of Mrs. Eleanor Alexander, was discovered at 7:23 a.m. Mrs. Alexander said that her son. Dennis, had apparently got the lighter out of her purse and started experimenting with it in a bedroom; the bed clothes ignited.

Firemen said the home, at 2246 Capitol avenue, was damaged to the extent of about $200. Fifty dollars of furnishings were damaged.

The first diesel engine model was built in 1892 by Dr. Rudolf Diesel, a German engineer.

Neighbors Aid Victim of Holdup

Neighbors and customers of the Garden's Supermarket, 1933 Pulgas avenue, have been most helpful this week, following the $10,000 robbery of Sunday, Dec. 14.

David Chin, proprietor, who was pistol-whipped and stuck with a knife by two robbers, reports that almost $800 in checks have been recovered by customers placing "stop" orders at their banks and making good on monies cashed at the store.

Two robbers, arriving at closing time Sunday, had forced Chin at gun point to reopen the market and the safe. They went off with three money bags, filled with $8000 in checks and $2000 in cash.

Chin was treated at Palo Alto Hospital for wounds on his forehead and back of his head, inflicted by the two men who were impatient with his handing over the store's receipts.

Although he was not aware of it at the time, Chin was also struck with a knife in the ribs.

Sheriff's deputies investigating leads in the East Palo Alto robbery report that it has similaritics to previous hold-ups in Oakland and Berkeley. On Friday, they were checking out possible leads coming from two bank checks that had been turned into originating banks.

"ST. NICK'S SWING" was the name given to the dance held by the eighth grade students of Encinal School on December 12. Decorations were in keeping with the theme and refreshments were served during the evening.

ENCINAL SCHOOL students have gathered Christmas presents to present to the students of the East Bay school in Russell City. The East Bay grade schoolers have been "adopted" by the Atherton school.

H. M. Stearns Named Fellow By Engineers

H. M. STEARNS

H. Myrl Stearns of Ladera, president of Varian Associates, Palo Alto electronics firm, was named a Fellow of the Institute of Radio Engineers by the board of directors at a recent meeting in Atlanta, Ga.

The grade of Fellow is the highest membership grade offered by the IRE and is bestowed only upon those who have made outstanding contributions to radio engineering or allied fields. Fellow awards for 1959 were made to 76 leading radio engineers and scientists from the United States, Canada, England, Germany and Japan.

Stearns was cited for his contributions in the field of microwave tubes and doppler radar.

Stearns, who lives at 246 La Cuesta drive, has served as director of the San Francisco section and chairman of the Palo Alto sub-section of the IRE. He also is active in affairs of the West Coast Electronic Manufacturers Association, serving the group as president in 1955.

Recently Stearns was elected 1959 chairman of the board of directors for WESCON. He also is a past vice-chairman for the West of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Christmas Safety:

Fire Chief Asks Care With Tree and Wirings

Every Christmas tree is a potential fire hazard, according to Menlo Park Fire District Chief George Carter.

In a seasonal warning, the fire chief has urged residents to use special caution in the selection, placement and maintenance of their trees. "Make your Christmas a safe and happy one," the chief says.

A check-list of safety suggestions prepared by the national board of fire underwriters got the chief's complete endorsement this week. It is as follows:

1. Choose a small tree instead of a large one. A small tree can be just as pretty, less hazardous.
2. Keep the tree outdoors until you're ready to install it.
3. Don't set up the tree until just before Christmas.
4. Set up the tree in the coolest part of the house, away from radiators, heaters, fireplaces. Stand it in water to retard drying.
5. Use fireproof decorations of glass or metal, never cotton or paper decorations unless flameproof.
6. Don't set up electric trains around or near the tree.
7. Use electric lights—never candles. Inspect every electric socket and wire to make sure set is in good condition. Discard lighting sets with frayed wiring. When buying new sets, look for UL label of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.
8. Provide a switch at some distance from the tree for turning tree lights on and off.
9. Don't leave lights burning when away from home.
10. From time to time inspect the tree to see whether any of the needles near the lights have started to turn brown. If so, change the position of the lights.
11. When needles start falling, take the tree down and discard it outdoors.
12. Gift wrappings, of course, should be discarded promptly and safely after presents are opened.

Radiomen Honor Two From SRI

(SRI) — The Institute of Radio Engineers has named Dr. John T. Bolljahn and Dr. Seymour B. Cohn of Stanford Research Institute as Fellows of the IRE "for their outstanding contributions to radio engineering."

Dr. Bolljahn, assistant director of SRI's Engineer Research division, earned the honor for his contributions to the fundamental theory and design of antennas. Dr. Cohn was named an IRE Fellow for his contributions to the theory and design of microwave components.

Since joining SRI in 1949, Dr. Bolljahn has engaged in research programs concerned with antennas, propagation, aircraft communications and navigation systems, missile tracking systems, and weapons systems.

In his present capacity, he has responsibility for research activities of the Communication and Radio Propagation, Radio Systems, Electro-magnetics and Weapons Systems laboratories.

Dr. Cohn's research activities have been principally concerned with microwave antennas, waveguide and strip-line circuits and components, filters, and microwave systems. He has been with SRI since 1953, and is now manager of SRI's Electromagnetics Laboratory.

At its meeting on Dec. 17 the Senior Recreation Club elected the following new officers: Coordinator, Charles Rascoe; treasurer, Gertrude Fitzgerald; music director, Hazel Ebner; kitchen chairman, Esther Lyons; publicity chairman, Marge Cassidy.

The Senior Club, sponsored by the Ravenswood Recreation and Park District, meets each Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Social Center.

Recorder Editors Honored by Fraternity

Two members of the editorial staff of the Menlo Park Recorder last Thursday were honored by the Northern California professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity.

Editor Roger C. Freeberg was initiated as a professional member of the society.

Sports Editor Warren "Rick" Talley was elected to a three-year term on the chapter's seven-man board of directors.

Freeberg, a member of the Recorder staff for nine years and managing editor for seven, was named editor of the local newspaper last September. He was graduated from San Jose State College school of journalism in 1949.

Talley, who joined the staff last May, was graduated from Southern Illinois University last March, where he had been president of the SIU undergraduate chapter of the fraternity. He affiliated with the Northern California professional chapter shortly after his arrival in Menlo Park.

Alert Officer Detects Blaze

The officer was Lieutenant Tony DeOcampo, who noticed smoke emanating from an auto parked in front of 515 O'Keefe street. He called the firemen.

The firemen said that the front seat of the car was afire, possibly as the result of a cigaret dropping on it. The driver said she had been smoking before she parked the vehicle.

Damage was estimated at $35.

Doug Brownell Will Head First Council

Fifty-five per cent of the Ravenswood High School student body went to the polls recently to elect the first set of permanant student council officers.

A total of 334 votes were cast in the polling booths borrowed from the county for the day and erected in J building.

Those elected were Douglas Brownell, Commissioner of Welfare; Lynn Mizefune, Commissioner of Administration; Bill Jones, Commissioner of Culture; Linda Tibbs, Commissioner of Finance; Leith Stevens, Commissioner of School Activities.

Run-off vote was held Monday between John Johnson and Pat Patton for the office of Commissioner of School Spirit.

In Monday's run-off vote, Johnson was named Commissioner, by approximately a 100 vote margin.

Mike Klawin was elected Commissioner of Boys Athletics and Lynne Kozen, Commissioner of Girls Athletics, Gary Long, Commissioner of Publications.

Formal installation of the officers will be held at an all-school assembly during the first week of January, according to Vice Principal Malcolm Taylor, faculty advisor.

The new council will be host on Wednesday, Jan. 14 for the interdistrict student council program with representatives from schools of the entire Sequoia Union High School District.

Make Hospital Gifts

Brownie and Girl Scout troops of Las Lomitas School are busy making gifts for Christmas giving. The girls have been making candy cane trees and doll clothes for the gifts they will present to the patients at Sonoma State Hospital.

The girls have also made tray favors for the bed-ridden children. Eight troops are participating in the project and representatives from the group will transport the gifts to the hospital.

Whence: MOSQUITOES

Slides showing the filth, dirt and grime in drainage ditches on property owned by the City of Palo Alto at the southern end of San Mateo county should be shown to all Menlo Park residents, according to John Caffet.

The civic leader told Menlo Park councilmen Tuesday that he had seen the pictures that night at a meeting of the Mosquito Abatement district, and that it was "appalling." He added:

"This is what is bringing the mosquitoes, gnats, and other insects to our area. Industries in the area complain that they can't keep their help because the employees are being bitten to death."

Chaffet concluded, "It's a health menace, due to the drainage ditches not being fixed. I think it's time Palo Alto took an interest in it."

"I, for one, am opposed to their attempting to withdraw this area from the district."

Stephen Henry Now a Sergeant

Stephen W. Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace A. Henry of 9 Hesketh drive, last week received his third meritorious promotion in less than 14 months in the Marines, his parents learned last week. He is now a sergeant.

He is presently on duty at the Marine Air Base at Iwakuni, Japan.

COLLECT MAGAZINES

Members of Den 1, Cub Scout Pack 206 recently completed a magazine collection drive, netting about 100 magazines for presentation to the county tuberculosis sanitorium for the entertainment of patients.

The pack is made up of Encinal school pupils: Mrs. L. Gould and Mrs. A. Anderson are co-leaders of Den 1.

Den members are Teddy Abenheim, Paul Anderson, J. Nomblais, Garrett Rothchild, Dean Wesley, Topper Gould, Fred Rectanus and Bob Sisson.

All in Fun:

Lifetime of 'Hobbying' Found Possible by Menlo Resident

James F. Lee of 193 Willow road is a man who can make hobbies pay. He makes his living out of what started out as recreational, spare time toying and he's managed to keep his activities on a scale which he can handle himself, so he can enjoy his work.

Lee, 59, found out that his easy-going way of life was possible when he decided to build his own radio tubes in the early 1920's. Today, at the age of 59—after learning to fly at the age of 41—he's still able to make his varied interests serve as both fun and livelihood.

"I was an auto electrician back in the '20's," he recalls, "when I decided to make some special tubes for the amateur radio transmitter I was then building.

"One thing led to another and by about 1928, I was able to blow x-ray tubes which I was able to sell.

"The demand for some special types of tubes is pretty particularized, and most workers in tube-building don't like to take apart factory-built ones for modification. Thus, there's a market for a small operation like this."

Lee explains that, among others, he's numbered the United States Bureau of Standards, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Stanford University among his customers.

He started selling his special equipment in 1928 and moved to Menlo Park in 1930. Since his hobby-type business left him plenty of time for another hobby, Lee started experimenting with photography. He also took up flying.

"The wife and I decided to take flying lessons in 1940, he explains. We liked it so much that we've been flying ever since.

The combination of flying and photography led to something else: steroscopic aerial photography.

"We started making "3-D" pictures for our own amusement, making use of the airplane's length as the basis for the distance between two remote control cameras," Lee says.

"Some of the pictures we turned out impressed our friends so much that we started getting asked for copies.

"Since then, we've flown all over the country, shooting pictures of scenery, national parks, and the like."

The receipts from the photographs pays for the flying.

"The wife and I decided we'd like to live a leisurely life when he first got married," Lee explains. "As far as we're concerned, our interests are all still hobbies.

Fire Damages Eatery Here

Menlo Park Fire District officers last week estimated damage resulting from a spectacular fire at the Grubstake restaurant, 883 El Camino Real, at $1500 and said more repairs were made before the facility reopened for business Saturday.

The fire, which occurred the afternoon of Dec. 17, was the second at the restaurant in two weeks. The second fire burned through primary electrical conduits, causing a spectacular electric fire display as the wires burned outside the building.

District Deputy Chief Edwin Wickstrom said the second fire might have started from grease in the flues above the restaurant's barbecue pits.

Progress Is Topic Of Assembly

Science students at Menlo-Atherton High School will see General Motors' "Previews of Progress" Jan. 21.

The program tells a dramatic non-technical story of jet propulsion, the making of synthetic rubber, glass harder than steel, and the use of solar energy to run an automobile.

"Previews in Progress" entertaining and educational, illustrates the material progress science has achieved and the vast opportunities awaiting students in science.

Mrs. Mary McLanathan, head of the high school science department, reported she feels the program will aid the students in understanding some of the many commercial opportunities afforded in scientific research as well as demonstrate that industry can be of significant aid in teaching science through such a cooperative program as a science assembly.

The assembly has been seen by 23,000,000 children and adults throughout the world and features many of the current advances in science.

These include the use of microwaves in communication, a fuel cell for the conversion of chemical energy directly into electrical energy, and some of the latest accomplishments with foam plastic.

The whole presentation is on stage with attention given to the questions and interests of students. The assembly will aid students in the presentation of their own science projects.

School District Cafeterias Seen As Losing Money

Menlo Park School District's cafeterias at Encinal and Hillview schools lost a total of $270 in a 17-day period of operation ending in mid-month, and have lost a total of $500 during the school year to date.

So reported school district business manager John Richert last week. He added, however, that he did not recommend any modification in the lunch program at this time, but would ask either discontinuance of the program or a raise in the price of food after Feb. 1.

Richert said that rising food costs not met by an increase in patronage was responsible for the cafeterias' going into the red.

Perennials are plants which live for an indefinite number of years.

As We See It:

Why a Summer School? What Does It Do?

Last week, Menlo Park School District administrators came up with a proposal to establish a summer school for four weeks here during the coming year.

There are several reasons why such a session would represent a good investment, not only in use of school plant, but in student time and in ability to pass on information as well.

Human knowledge is doubling and redoubling approximately every 15 years. Basic as well as marketable research is adding to our knowledge to an extent which will require tomorrow's young adult to assimilate information with almost unbelievable rapidity.

High school "college prep" students are required to take a course of study which leaves little if any time for the extras. Yet these same college prep courses require a wide variety of skills in writing, in research, in preparation of reports, and the presentation of material in the spoken word.

The summer elementary school presents an opportunity not just to "keep the kids off the street" but to bring to the children some of these knowledges and skills for which there just isn't time enough in the regular school term.

Who among us knows as much about geography as he would like to know? Who among us can honestly say that he has studied history sufficiently to permit him intelligently to observe and interpret current history in the making?

The skill of typing is an almost necessary adjunct to successful college preparation today. Learning the skills of debating and public discussion at an early age gives bright young people a distinct advantage in many secondary school learning situations and are certainly worthwhile skills for anyone to acquire, be he a youth or an adult. But in many cases, these courses cannot be fitted into the curriculum of the regular school year.

The opportunity for the plodder, the less fortunate, less able student to be helped over some of the more difficult learning hurdles during a short concentrated "fundamentals review" program is in ever increasing demand in today's society — one in which we can foresee keener and keener competition among our youth for the available space in our institutions of higher learning in the very, very near future.

Summer school should not deprive children of the beach, or the mountains, or the farm, or the river, but four hours a day for four weeks will go very quickly and leave ample time for vacations, for opportunities for summer jobs, and for kids to just be kids.

A Boys' Club Here Is Symptom of Growth

Time was — and not so long ago, either — when residents hereabouts would have scoffed at the idea of a Boys' Club in Menlo Park.

Those were the days when Menlo Park was a hamlet, surrounded by fields, roads excellent for riding bicycles on, enough animals, space, swimming holes, and so forth. Any boy could keep himself busy and happy with the rural pleasures.

There were those who felt, and those who still feel, that outdoor fun can best be enjoyed by groups. Hence we have the Boy Scouts and similar groups which organize hikes, weekend campouts and the like, where boys go and burn meat over a smoky campfire instead of eating sensibly at home.

In these not-so-far-off times, a "boys' club" was something they had in the city. It was a place where boys went to play basketball and other games, rather than on the street.

The idea that Menlo Park might become a city with the same need for a place for boys to go sounded pretty far-fetched.

Well. . . . It happened.

The roads aren't as excellent for bicycling as they used to be; there's too much traffic. Ruminating cows don't lean over fences and commune with by-passing boys; the pastures have all been subdivided. Any real estate man will tell you that space is pretty valuable stuff; even the swimming holes have been found to be less than adequate and they're polluted, usually, anyhow.

Considering all this, it's well that a group of citizens has taken a forward step in meeting the needs of a city; the Boys' Club of Menlo Park deserves the approval of all.

Menlo Park is growing up.

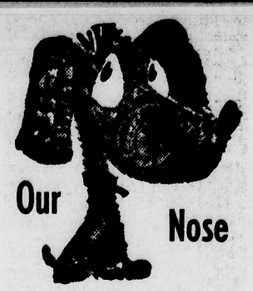
———o———

Supervisor Thomas Callan's recent remark that he felt San Mateo county board members should be chauffeured around in Cadillacs, so they look like somebodies instead of just a bunch of anonymous politicians, has stirred quite a bit of comment.

But if the supervisors want to be really distinctive, why should they stick themselves with brand new machines, which will lose their distinctiveness in a couple of years? Why not shoot for something really good?

A generation ago the auto moguls of the U.S. put out such fine creations as the Duesenberg, Cord, Pierce-Arrow, Marmon, Stutz, and others, many of which have come to be designated as "classic."

Any modern Michigan Monster can be expected to need replacement in a couple of years. It has built-in obsolescence. The classics go on and on, without depreciation.



TELLS US:

Even Woodside High School's menacing looking mascot, a stuffed wildcat, got himself decked out for the holiday season.

He was packed out of the safe and bespangled with a collar to which was attached a Christmas corsage.

Recorder Correspondent Richard Polese has shown a new talent: he can announce basketball games.

The reason this news is printed is because virtually nobody heard him do his announcing, at the recently-concluded Menlo-Atherton High School Class B tournament.

It wasn't the fault of the public address system, either; there just wasn't much of an audience.

* * *

Nothing is sacred to the Encinal Planet, which in its most recent issue comes up with the following report:

Mr. Arnold Borley, sixth grade teacher, returned from a summer tour of Europe only a few days before school started. He had been gone for almost three months.

Mr. Borley took 250 pictures during his stay and stated that except for a few of sidewalks and people with no heads, they all turned out fine.

While taking a picture of the Grand Canal in Italy, Mr. Borley slipped and fell in, luckily only to his knees. Without help he was able to climb out, and after recovering his camera, continued to take pictures like all true tourists.

When asked for a comment on his travels, Mr. Borley replied:

"Cherchez la femme. . . ."

Herewith, a picture showing what happens to those high heeled pumps high school girls insist on having, to go to formal dances. The photo shows several pairs of them temporarily "parked" along the wall of Menlo-Atherton High School's J building, where the school's Christmas formal was held last Friday evening.

The shoes, everybody agrees, are part of the uniform, but lots of high school girls are novices at wearing them; hence, they'd just as soon dance in stockinged feet.

Somebody suggested that each high school girl have two boy friends: a short one, for formal occasions, so she wouldn't have to wear high heeled shoes to bring herself up to proprietary height, and a tall one, for dancing with, so she could pretend she had her shoes off.

The suggestion, as far as we know, went unheeded.

MAYBE CHRISTMAS 1959, HUH?

Municipal Report:

Area Officials Might Find Strange Gifts Attractive

Christmas time is here and area governmental leaders, like everybody else, early this week were getting a little curious as to what would be under the tree on Thursday morning.

It's customary for newspaper editors to think up "gifts" which they think the leaders would like. Some of the gifts are pretty abstruse but there's no harm in wishing; half the fun is in the anticipation, anyhow.

Just now, we bet each and every Menlo Park city councilman would like to find, under his tree on Christmas morning, a finally okayed plan for civic center development, and an authorization from the voters to go ahead with the construction of an underpass connecting Willow road to El Camino Real.

To be really meaningful, the civic center plan would have to include a youth center and a police station; these in themselves would be considered wonderful presents by the city recreation commission and department and the police department, respectively.

The Menlo Park Sanitary District board of trustees probably wishes, more than anything else, that everybody would agree their connection fees for new territory were okay.

A letter to that effect, signed by an authorized representative of Stanford University, would make them all very happy.

This would be a relatively inexpensive Christmas present to send, but Stanford administrators think that in the long run it might run into a gift of more than $3,000,000. It's not likely to be found in anybody's stocking.

Fire District Chief George Carter and all his firemen have a couple of wishes.

First, they hope fires will be few. They most especially hope they can spend Christmas day quietly at the stations, for the rather generous reason that they don't want to have to be called by somebody whose holiday has been wrecked by fire.

Next, they hope some day to be able to get enough fire alarm equipment and other gadgetry to justify a drop in fire insurance rates. This is really a continuing program with the firemen; they wish for this sort of thing every year, and hope every year they get a little closer to its realization.

Atherton city attorney Winston C. Black would probably appreciate a nice empty box, loaded with silence and with not one writ, complaint, filing, mandamus, or lawsuit contained therein.

After a year which has seen a series of campaigns to the courthouse regarding tree houses, fences and the school district, a nice comfortably large slice of benign silence would seem a pretty fine gift.

As for the rest of Atherton's administration—all five councilmen and Town Clerk W. Howard Boren—they probably wish for some sort of formula for keeping Atherton attractive,, without attracting anybody. They would like to keep Atherton as it used to be, before the Great Peninsula Land Rush.

Retroactive Christmas presents aren't likely so maybe they, too, will have to settle for something more easily obtained, like Town Attorney Black.

30 Years Ago:

Christmas Dinner Cost $1

The files of the Menlo Park Recorder reveal that, 30 years ago this week, the following items, here reproduced exactly as first published, were news in the young community:

December 21, 1928:

V. Alexander, proprietor of the M & H Restaurant located on the Highway in this city announces that his establishment will serve a Turkey Dinner on Christmas Day, for which the nominal charge of $1 per person will be made. Reservations can be made for parties if desired by seeing Mr. Alexander.

There is no reason this year why the busy housewife should spend the day in a hot kitchen when the dinner for the family can be secured at such a reasonable price, and in a restaurant where service, courtesy and cleanliness are the watchwords of the owners.

McGinnis Estate Got New Owner

December 31, 1948:

The famed McGinnis estate, "Fair Winds," at Santa Cruz avenue and Arbor road in Menlo Park, has been sold to the Catholic archdiocese of San Francisco for use as a summer residence of the Most Rev. John J. Mitty, it was announced this week.

The sale price was not disclosed, but revenue stamps affixed to the deed in the county recorder's office indicated a sum of $90,000.

The estate is widely known because of the presence on the grounds of an old Pullman car and a cable car that the former owner, the late Felix McGinnis, former president of the Southern Pacific railroad, had moved onto the property as playthings for his children.

Jobbins Names Treasurer

Announcement of the appointment of David M. Willbee to the position of treasurer of Jobbins Electronics of Menlo Park was made this week by Charles W. Jobbins, president of the firm.

Situated at 771 Hamilton avenue, the firm manufactures travelling wave focus solenoids and other specialized electronics equipment.

HOT AIR condensing looked like smoke, and a possible fire to a passerby at Draeger's Market, University avenue and Menlo avenues, Sunday night. Firemen responding to the call report that it was the store's blower system working.

Affairs of State:

State Senator Says Budget Balance Is in Jeopardy

(Senator Richard J. Dolwig of Atherton, San Mateo county's representative to the state's upper house, this week initiated a series of three articles for distribution to weekly newspapers in his constituency. The views expressed are his own, and not necessarily those of this newspaper.—Ed.)

By Senator Richard J. Dolwig

As the State Senator from San Mateo county, I am one of 120 members of the board of directors of the biggest business in California. And I am deeply concerned over the fact that this business is running at a deficit.

The state budget for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1959, is over two billion dollars. The Legislative auditor estimates the deficit for the current fiscal year will range between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000.

For the next fiscal year starting July 1, 1959 he anticipates an accumulated deficit of approximately $280,000,000 unless new taxes are levied or expenses are reduced.

Two-thirds of the budget is made up of mandatory items beyond the control of the legislature. These are funds voted directly by the people and imbedded into the constitution. With respect to these funds the only function of the Legislature is to levy the taxes to make the payments.

The largest of these mandatory funds is that of state support for the public schools. This is paid to local school authorities on the basis of $180 for each pupil, based on average daily attendance.

The more pupils, the higher the state allocation. For next year, the increase in this mandatory item is estimated at $40,000,000. In addition, the schools are asking for $80,000,000 to meet increased costs not covered by the $40,000,000 automatic boost.

The trend to making the Legislature simply a tax fixing agency with no control over expenditures was temporarily halted this year, when the voters rejected Proposition No. 17. I am hopeful that this means the public wants the Legislature to have more control over state expenditures, for without this control true economy in government is impossible.

Meanwhile, we have the problem of balancing the budget. An Associated Press poll shows most legislators believe new taxes are inevitable, but I am reserving judgment on this point.

There is talk of more consumer taxes and higher personal income taxes to solve the state's fiscal problem, but this, to me, is the easy way out of our dilemma. I believe that an austerity program can be imposed on that portion of the budget over which the Legislature has control. I also believe that some agencies have squirreled away surpluses which should be transferred into the general fund to meet the budget.

I recently ran an adding machine tape on surplus funds in various state agencies, and I was amazed to find that these ran to approximately $40,000,000. By June 30, 1959, the total surplus in these special funds is expected to reach $111,000,000. There is also about $150,000,000 in the investment fund, derived from oil royalties from state lands.

The fees paid by many of the professions and businesses to the state for the service rendered are often less than employees of both pay to their unions in dues. A more realistic schedule of fees, paid into the general fund, might be a partial solution to the state's fiscal problem.

As a member of the Joint Legislative Tax Committee, I have sat for days at hearings listening to testimony from experts and others. Most people say tax the other fellow, but not me.

My object is to impose no new taxes on anybody, if this is possible.

And I think it can be done without impairing any essential state service or paying state employees less than what they would earn for comparable work in private industry.

Supervisors Launch District

San Mateo County Board of Supervisors last week passed the official resolution ordering formation of a new policing district for the East Palo Alto area.

Boundaries adopted were those presented to the board last week, and eliminated a portion of Palo Alto owned lands on the southern end of the district, and underwater portions of lands owned by Idea Cement Co., Leslie Salt Co., and the City and County of San Francisco.

County Comment

County Flood Control District To Be Speeded by U.S. Support

By FLOYD M. McCUE
Editor and Publisher, Redwood City Star-Advertiser

One of San Mateo county's most serious problems — despite the lack of rain now — is soon to be on its way toward solution. The board of supervisors has started legal steps to form a county-wide flood control district that, in the end, will do away with all the lowland flooding during heavy rains.

Such a program has been in the talking stage for many years but it was finally Menlo Park city officials and a few others that brought the measure to head. Actually, only three city councils are now opposing the plan, namely San Mateo, Hillsborough and Daly City. But this opposition is not expected to break down the program.

The state and federal governments can be expected to contribute to the project, but there will be local taxes for certain.

As is often the case the residents who live on high ground are voicing the most opposition. They wrongly claim that they have nothing to do with flood conditions and should not be included in such a district. These people refuse to consider the fact that the big runoff comes from the very hills where they have their homes.

Hillsborough residents, in particular, are arguing that they purchased expensive property up out of the lowlands and then built expensive homes. They care not tnat the runoffs pass their property, fill up the basins at the foot of the hills and flood stores, manufacturing plants and homes.

The fact that many of these hills homes run $50,000 or better still would not put them in the tax-paying class of our large business blocks or the huge manufacturing plants which lie east of El Camino on filled mud flats.

Atherton tried its best to put across a costly flood control and drainage plan, but the proposal fell through due mainly to the objections of the people up on high ground and a certain section of Menlo Park which contributed to the flood problems. Similar conditions exist in many other parts of the county and the county-wide program is the most logical and should be carried out.

The board of supervisors realizes that there must be a degree of benefit in considering the program as a whole. Those who benefit the most will naturally pay the most taxes. But those landowners who happen to own contributing areas to flood conditions will not get off without any tax. The lowland industrial properties, already valued and taxed higher than any others, will pay much of the tax because they will be the most benefitted.

Some cities along the bay which do not have flood problems—and we can't think of a one — would probably be excluded or else pay only a token tax. The Coastside would have to pay only the share of improvements needed in that area and certainly not contribute to the work on the bay side.

Cities which have already done much to correct their own problems will be given "credit" for that work. As part of an off-street parking program, Redwood City has covered much of the downtown creek area, thus avoiding flooding of stores in that area. Some work has been done in other areas, but much more is needed.

Leaders of the County Manufasturers Association are spearheading the campaign for complete flood control. They have the facts and figures to show the cost of flood damage through shutdowns (and loss of wages to employees) as well as damage to equipment and stock. A draft of a measure to be presented to the state legislature in January is being worked out and will be up for supervisor approval before going to Sacramento.

There has been no decision whether the work would be financed by general obligation bonds or some other method. It has not been decided either, whether the voters would have to approve the bond plans. Also the amount of participation by the state and federal governments is not known at this time.

With councilmen of San Mateo in their present mood, it may be that they will battle this or any other measure vigorously. They are sore — as are many of the merchants —at the board's decision to locate the new central municipal court building at the extreme north limits of San Mateo. In our opinion the board was wise in picking its own location, one that will better serve the area from Millbrae south.

Too, they will not be bound by restrictions placed by city officials in the proposed city-county program.

Undoubtedly the site selected will be less expensive. Certaily it was for the land, and in addition the county will have room to expand at a later date and never have the SRO sign hung up by the city at a later date, necessitating the construction of a new building.

San Mateo as a city should provide its own city offices and let the county have its own. The board is to be congratulated on its decision.

Residents Win Orchid Plants

Three area residents were awarded blooming orchid plants as prizes, having been declared winners of a contest sponsored by Ludcke's Menlo Park paint store.

The three were Mrs. William A. Moore, 1700 Santa Cruz avenue; Mrs. H. D. Wagner of 57 Isabella avenue in Atherton and Mrs. Dora Cohn, 2060 Valparaiso avenue in Atherton.

At City Schools:

Thorough Safety Program Cuts Possibility of Disaster Here

There is little chance that the disastrous recent Chicago school fire which claimed the lives of more than 90 children can be duplicated here.

Nevertheless, reported School District Superintendent Dr. Mel Homfeld last week, constant vigilance is practiced to make all schools as safe as possible.

Firemen and police agencies operating in the school district area have continuing campaigns to increase safety of pupils throughout the year, he reported.

"Following the disastrous conflagration in Chicago, all of us are again made keenly aware of the possibility of fire or other catastrophe in our schools," Dr. Homfeld declared.

"The Fire Marshal makes a complete and detailed annual inspection of every facility prior to the opening of school, paying particular attention to warning systems, exits, storage of combustible materials, misuse of electricity, and any other safety hazards which he might detect. Each month during the school year he again visits every school in the district to supervise the fire drills, to time them, and to advise on improvement of procedures," the superintendent explained.

Plans for the evacuation of the schools in case of disaster other than fire have, meanwhile, been cooperatively prepared by the Civil Defense organization, the PTA's, and school district personnel.

"Every regular classroom in the district is equipped with school-house hardware which cannot be locked from the inside, and every regular classroom except two have double exits. The rented facilities do not in many cases meet the same standards of safety afforded the children who are housed in our established schools," he went on.

Dr. Homfeld explained that a monthly safety and maintenance inspection of every school is also made by the maintenance foreman, the head custodian, and the principal or vice-principal of the school. These inspections include playground equipment, playground surfaces, building exteriors and interiors, doors and windows, cabinets and furniture, floors, heating and electrical systems, and storage.

Custodians are prohibited from storing any liquid combustibles in any of the school buildings. No storage of any combustible refuse is permitted at any time in any building.

OTHER SERVICES

Turning to other matters, Homfeld declared, "The police departments of Menlo Park and Atherton make annual inspections prior to the opening of school concerning the safety of vehicle and pedestrian movement on streets and walkways near the schools and on the school grounds. They cause necessary street painting to be accomplished, signs to be erected and maintained, and in other ways make necessary preparation for the safe opening of the schools.

"Immediately following the opening of the schools, specially trained officers are detailed to the schools to assist in the training and supervision of student traffic patrols who supervise the coming and going of children before, during, and after school hours.

"These officers regularly patrol the streets around our schools and constantly inspect and supervise the operation of the student traffic patrols. The Menlo Park police department also employs part-time adult safety patrolmen to service the major school children's street crossings throughout the city.

"The Menlo Park District Schools enjoy almost unprecedented safety services from the law enforcement agencies of the two municipalities, the Fire Protection District, the Sanitary District, the Street departments and the public utility corporations serving the community. All of these agencies respond without reservation to every call for assistance in developing and maintaining a safe school system," Homfeld concluded.

Tree Cutters Win Praise

Menlo Park's city tree trimming program received unqualified praise this week from Mrs. J. V. Nelson, of 1032 Oakland avenue.

In a letter to the city staff, Mrs. Nelson pointed out that she and her husband had moved here from Oakland, "because the general appearance attracted us . . . and we've never regretted our selection."

The letter said that "splendid tree trimming on our block," by city crews, is done thoroughly and carefully.

It continued, "As a taxpayer, I consider it money well spent."

S.F. Asks Area Support in Plan To Enlarge Hetch Hetchy Line

Efforts of the City and County of San Francisco to establish a long term program for water distribution in the area Tuesday night appeared to have unqualified support from the Menlo Park city council.

City Manager John R. Johnson reported that San Francisco water department had called together representatives of all cities and districts in the Bay area who buy S.F. water to outline needs for a $200,000,000 capital improvement program and to ask for long term commitments. Explained Johnson:

"They've compiled extensive studies of the system and find that San Francisco is increasing at the rate of only 1 per cent a year, while outsider users are growing at the rate of 10 per cent a year."

The city manager pointed out that in order to meet the growth of these outside areas (which include the Peninsula, portions of Alameda county, Santa Clara county and Milpitas) the S.F. Water department finds that it needs a new line paralleling the present Hetch-Hetchy pipeline. Before going to the voters of San Francisco for the funds, the water department needs to have long-term commitments from the outside users, guaranteeing that the monies will be repaid.

Said Mayor William Lawson, "Water is so important that I'm in favor of supporting any reasonable effort that will assure the source for a reasonable term of years. . . . San Francisco is very generous to consider our problems."

Councilman Guy Plaisted noted that the problem was one of distribution, not of obtaining water sources.

According to City Manager Johnson, Peninsula cities were to meet yesterday to develop a cooperative program for supporting the San Francisco program and possible rate increase. Further details will be developed by San Francisco in the near future, he added.

Localite Has Personal 'Dimes' March

A man in Menlo Park for whom the "March of Dimes" polio fund is a year-round thing, has made contributions totalling an even $100 in 1958, it was announced today by T. J. Hallinan, director of the annual drives in San Mateo County.

He is W. F. Palmer, of 3431 Middlefield road in Menlo Park who, Hallinan reports, "is very faithful with his donation and brings it into this office in dimes every month of the year."

Hallinan is vice president and general manager of the California Pacific Title Insurance Company, and has been head of the annual "March of Dimes" campaigns in this county since the Foundation was started in 1936 by the late President Frankiin D. Roosevelt, himself a polio victim.

It seems that Palmer has never had polio nor, as far as is known, has there been anyone in his immediate family stricken by this paralyzing disease. He makes his contributions each month or so, Hallinan reiterated, making his first one in 1958 on Jan. 2, the second day of the new year, almost a year ago now.

The 1959 drive begins officially Jan. 2, and continues through January, as usual.

George Washington Nips M-A in B Tourney, 38-37

By RICK TALLEY

Take away two seconds and Menlo-Atherton High School could claim the new champions of the annual M-A Holiday Basketball Tournament.

But instead, the hard-fighting Class B Bruins are runnerups to George Washington High School of San Francisco . . . again.

The Eagles, victorious now in 84 of their past 88 games, nipped M-A in Saturday night's championship game, 38-37, on a frantic lay-in by GW's Art Yoshihara with a scant two seconds left on the clock.

In other Saturday night action, Carlmont defeated Palo Alto for third place, 44-25 and Burlingame won the consolation title by ousting Capuchino, 43-32.

Saturday night's title game, which put George Washington's name on the giant perpetual trophy for the second consecutive year, was the best-played ball game staged on the mid-peninsula this season, excluding none, in this writer's opinion.

The five iron-men from Menlo-Atherton: Jon Peck, Frankie Lee, Roger Simrin, Lou Cryer and Norman MacKay, played their hearts out in an effort to stay undefeated. Their season mark is now 7-1.

But although they lost the tourney championship, the Bruins will undoubtedly now be rated as the team to beat for this year's SPAL championship.

Lou Cryer, who finished the night with five points, was almost the big hero for M-A. With only 54 seconds remaining on the clock, and M-A trailing 36-35, the calmly stepped to the free throw line and sank two vital free throws that put his team in the lead, 37-36.

Washington, after taking a time out, attempted to clinch the game on a jump shot by Frank Jones, but the shot missed and Washington's Eddie Arikawa rebounded and passed to Art Yoshihara.

Yoshihara was then fouled by Frankie Lee with only 14 seconds remaining, but missed the free throw.

Once again Washington rebounded, and this time it was fatal. Jones took the ball after a scramble near the free throw line and whipped a pass underneath to Yoshihara, who lofted it up and off the backboard through the nets only seconds before the final horn.

Lorrel Anderson, selected by sportswriters and tournament officials as the tourney's "Outstanding Player," scored nine points in the championship fray and grabbed seven rebounds.

Yoshihara, however, Washington's "old reliable," led both teams in scoring with 14 points, hitting seven of 17 field goal attempts.

Jon Peck, who missed making the all-tournament by a very narrow margin, was M-A's leading scorer with 12 points. He hit three for six from the field, two of them 15-foot jump shots coming back to back late in the third period.

Roger Simrin tallied eight points for M-A and played a fine rebounding game. Frankie Lee, although hitting a cold one for seven from the field, finished the night with six points and a pair of valuable assists.

Both Simrin and Lee earned themselves spots on the all-tourney squad.

In addition to Anderson and Yoshihara, Leonard Graves was also named from GW's team to the eight-man all tourney team, giving the two finalists five of the eight all-star spots.

To earn the right to compete in the championship game, Menlo-Atherton had whipped Arroyo 52-15 in a mis-matched first round game, and had outlasted a very determined Carlmont five in the semi-finals, 42-37.

Jon Peck's 14 tallies led M-A in the Arroyo game, followed by Roger Simrin with 13.

In the scrappy Carlmont battle, playmaker Frankie Lee hit 10 of 11 free throw attempts and scored 18 points.

Simrin was again second with 11 points.

Washington defeated Lincoln 60-32 and Palo Alto 51-37 to gain the title game. Anderson scored 18 and 21 points respectively in the games. Yoshihara was close behind with 15 and 16.

In Saturday's championship game, Menlo-Atherton hit an excellent .444 percentage from the field, with 12 of 27 field goal attempts. They sank 13 of 18 free throw shots for a .722 mark.

Washington, hurt by a near-disastrous second quarter when they hit only 2 of 16 shots, hit a total of 17 for 50 for a final .340 percentage.

In the pressure-packed last half, Washington hit 11 of 24 while M-A hit seven of 15.

GW's Anderson Named Top Player In M-A Tourney

Lorrel Anderson, George Washington's star who stands only 5' 3½ high and jumps 6' 2", was unanimously selected as the "Outstanding Player" in the 1958 Menlo-Atherton Class B Holiday Tournament.

Anderson headed an eight-man all-tournament team selected by sportswriters and tournament officials. The GW senior (nine of George Washington's 12-man squad are seniors) was the tourney's top scorer with 48 points in three tourney games and was responsible for 18 rebounds.

His teammate Art Yoshihara, star of the championship game, scored 45 points in the three games and was also a unanimous choice for the all-tourney team.

Frank Jones of George Washington, Frankie Lee and Roger Simrin of Menlo-Atherton, Ron Jensen of Burlingame, Bob Strohecker of Palo Alto and John DeVos of Carlmont were other all-star choices.

Jon Peck, Menlo-Atherton's top scoring threat, was a close ninth in the balloting and missed the squad by one vote.

GW's Jones was the boy who grabbed the final rebound and was responsible for the assist that set up the winning bucket in Saturday's championship game. He scored 15 points in the three games.

Frankie Lee, M-A's southpaw player and ace defensive player, scored 32 points in the tourney. Roger Simrin also tallied 32 markers in the three contests.

Burlingame's stalwart pivot man, Ron Jensen, scored 42 points and led all players in rebounds for the tournament with 45 in three games.

Carlmont's John DeVos also tallied 42 points in the tourney, scoring 16 in a losing cause against Menlo-Atherton Friday night.

Bob Strohecker of Palo Alto tallied 24 points in the three games, half of these in the opener that Paly dropped to Burlingame, 41-35.

Each member of the all-tournament team was presented an individual trophy, and Lorrel Anderson was presented a larger trophy for his "Outstanding Player" achievement.

Prep Basketball on Peninsula Is Not Strong—but Do Fans Care?

To say that the calibre of high school basketball played on the peninsula was strong would be stretching the facts just a little.

★ ★ ★ ★

And to say that fans in the area really care about who wins or loses would be stretching the truth even farther.

In fact, we found it very hard to locate in the Palo Alto and Menlo-Atherton gymnasiums what we could honestly call "fans."

★ ★ ★ ★

Putting two and two together, low-calibre action and low-interest—and what do you have?

Which is responsible for the other: Do California, peninsula or what-have-you people not find interest in high school basketball because it is generally mediocre?

Or is high school basketball generally mediocre because there is no great interest in it—'cause the sun shines brightly and the peninsula thousands have so many, many other things to entertain them.

★ ★ ★ ★

This writer is certainly not out to change things—he's just curious. It's just that after recently moving to the Golden West from the snowed-in midwest, where prep basketball is King and the barber shops close so the proprietor can go see the neighbor boy play—that he finds his sense of sporting values sharply upset by splashing water poloist, sports car enthusiast and 49er fan.

★ ★ ★ ★

So shall we launch a crusade to enliven the high school basketball interest on the peninsula? Or shall we ease back this weekend and enjoy the Giant-Colt game on TV, and let the cage sport fall in it's slowly order of preference in California's long line of sporting interests?

★ ★ ★ ★

We're rooting for the Colts, how about you?

One Exception . . .

The one exception we must make to our back-door attack on prep cage quality is the game we were fortunate enough to witness Saturday in Menlo-Atherton's Class B tourney.

The Class B boys played before a pretty good crowd, considering the overall sparceness of fans for the tourney—and considering the direct day-by-day competition from Palo Alto's varsity tourney and a "must-go-to" dance at Menlo-Atherton Friday night.

(Paly's tourney could never quite fill the gym either—or approach such a thought.)

★ ★ ★ ★

But back to the George Washington-M-A championship game. It was excellent. Both teams were extremely well-coached and sportsmanlike, and as the score showed, they fought tooth and nail for the biggest trophy.

It was a thriller all the way, and if anything could put an injection into peninsula basketball—this was it.

Too bad more people didn't see the game.

★ ★ ★ ★

Coffee-Cup Predictions . . .

In case anyone's interested on how our coffee-cup predictions came out on the two basketball tournaments: At Palo Alto, we picked nine of the 11 games right, including the champ, runnerup, third and fourth spot. We picked Bellarmine to win the consolation title but Jefferson beat them Saturday night.

At M-A, we flopped the first day, missing a pick, and then went ahead to completely miss the consolation bracket. In the winner's bracket, however, George Washington and Menlo-Atherton finished one-two as predicted.

Lucky Bench One-Point Shy for M-A

Bill Loftus, Menlo-Atherton's Class B coach and director of the second annual holiday tournament concluded Saturday night, felt sure the lucky odds were with him in the George Washington championship game.

"We've got the lucky bench," said Loftus before the final game.

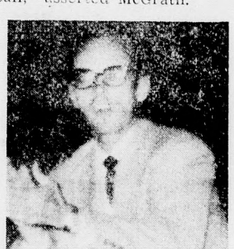
"Every team who has sat on that bench in the tournament has won," said the former USF cager, pointing to M-A's bench.

But although the "lucky bench" worked wonders for 10 straight tourney games, its charm fell one point shy for Loftus' Bruins as George Washington nipped them 38-37.

* * *

George Washington High School's coach John McGrath was far from jubilant following the Eagles' 46-44 win over Menlo-Atherton Friday night in the Palo Alto Invitational semi-final round.

"These kids of mine are too busy playing to the crowd instead of playing solid basketball," asserted McGrath.



Coach Bill Loftus

. . . Up and down from "lucky" bench that didn't produce.

"Take Owyoung, for instance," moaned McGrath, "he'd rather throw up a freakish left-handed hook and hear the crowd cheer than make a lay-up like he's supposed to."

* * *

In the Cubberley-Palo Alto game Friday evening, Paly's John Pastinieks had a technical foul called on him for shoving the referee in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Cubberley's Mike Nichols picked up a technical foul for likewise shoving Paly's Rich Hunt.

In the fading moments of the fourth quarter, Shibun Tana almost sparked an incident that could have ended the game in a full-scale riot when he whirled on Paly's Craig Carpenter.

* * *

Official Mel Harrison spurted between the two in time to keep fists from flying, but not in time to stop the accompanying verbal obscenities that ricocheted around the gym.

* * *

One of the best mannered and well behaved teams in Menlo-Atherton's Class B tourney was the squad that took the gravy—George Washington's Eagles.

Coach Alex Athansopoulos' squad is now 6-1 for the 1958-59 season—with a remarkable record of 84 wins in the last 88 games.

The one loss this season came two weeks ago against Richmond, when Lorrel Anderson missed a pair of free throws in the final second of the game with the score tied 37-37. The Eaglets lost in an overtime.

* * *

If any indication can be gained from the Paly varsity tourney about the coming South Peninsula Athletic League season, it looks as if Menlo-Atherton is in good shape.

Palo Alto pushed Cubberley to the limit before losing 42-36, while Menlo-Atherton had no trouble whatsoever in defeating Palo Alto, 56-40. And although the Bears lost to George Washington, they put on a much better show than Cubberley did the final night.

Sequoia and Carlmont have each lost over three ball games too, so no definite favorite seems in SPAL sight.

It seems entirely possible that a team could take the league title with a 5-3 record this year—and a 6-2 would almost be a sure bet.

M-A Loses 46-44 Semi-Final Thriller To Tourney Champs

Menlo - Atherton's varsity, missing a chance for Palo Alto's Invitational tournament championship by the narrowest of margins, settled for third place in the affair Saturday night by blitzing the host Paly Vikings, 56-40.

The Bears lost their semi-final game to George Washington High School of San Francisco Friday night, 46-44. George Washington went ahead Saturday night in the finals to rap Cubberley 47-41 and take the championship.

Cliff Davis, the little man with M-A's ball-handling responsibilities, made mincemeat of Palo Alto's attempted man-to-man defense Saturday, scoring 19 points in three quarters before retiring.

The Bears, who now have a 5-3 season mark in pre-league competition, scored 13 straight points at one period early in the game. They trailed 8-1 with 2:34 remaining in the first quarter but moved to a 14-8 lead before Paly could can another one.

The Bears moved ahead 22-12 and led at halftime 26-16. The varsity stretched its margin to 15 points, 41-26, at one point in the third period. Only reserves played the last quarter for Coach Bob Ayers' squad.

Davis, who missed his first four free throw attempts and seemed headed for a bad night, was phenomenal during the remainder of the first half.

The 5'8" senior, M-A's only choice for the all-tournament team, hit five of eight shots the first half and scored 14 points. Most of his buckets came on 15-foot jump shots or squirming left-handed drive-ins. He fouled out Paly's Terry Cooley in the process.

Actually, of Menlo-Atherton's first 20 points scored, Davis marked up 16 of them.

Coach Bob Ayers, still experimenting with his starting lineup in an effort to combine rebounding and scoring punch, started sophomore Larry Kennedy at center.

Kennedy failed to help much in scoring but did a fine rebounding and defensive job. Dave McDowell and Rick Wright started at forwards and Paul Dallas began at the other guard spot.

Both Wright and McDowell played outstanding rebounding games for the Bears, although accounting for only 10 points between them. Paul Dallas scored two buckets for M-A, one on a tip-in and the other a left-handed hook.

M-A was sent into the Paly battle after losing a tremendous semi-final to George Washington, 46-44.

Although they lost their third game of the year in the Friday night contest, coach Ayers' boys gave their best performance of the year in pushing the favored San Francisco team down to the final horn before bowing.

And with a few breaks, the Bears could have been in Saturday night's championship affair with Cubberley.

Their chances were hurt, however, by their marksmanship from the free throw line. M-A connected on only 10 of 19 free throws, and missed the big ones in the fourth quarter that could have put them in the lead.

Trailing 39-38, Cliff Davis missed one and Dave McDowell missed a pair of charity tosses that could have put M-A ahead.

Later in the closing moments with only 45 seconds remaining and M-A trailing 46-44, Rick Wright stepped to the free throw line with a one-and-one situation.

His first toss was too hard, however, and the Eagles rebounded. M-A got possession once more and with 12 seconds remaining in the ball game, Cliff Davis took a jump shot from the back of the circle that bounced off to the side at the final horn.

Washington, although connecting on only 20 of 72 field goal attempts for a .278 percentage, got most of its points on close-in rebounds by 6'4" Steve Gray or 6'5" Harry Simon. Gray finished the evening with 16 points. Simon scored only six but hooked off a large share of rebounds.

Menlo-Atherton played its best ball in the third quarter, after trailing 27-21 at halftime. The Bears swished through four straight shots at one point in the third stanza, taking the lead at one point, 32-31 after Ken Oaksen had canned two straight fielders.

GW led 37-35 at the third quarter mark, however, and the Bears could never again take the lead, although they tied the score 42-42.

Larry Kennedy failed to break into the scoring column but played a big role in M-A's last-half comeback with his fine rebounding.

Cliff Davis turned in a fine floor game guarding GW's much-publicized Norman Owyoung, and outplayed the Eagle star in every department.

Owyoung scored seven points —all coming in the final half. For the game, he connected on only three of 17 field goal attempts.

Menlo-Atherton, after trailing 16-8 at the end of the first quarter and hitting on only two of 12 field goal attempts, finished the game with a respectable .362 mark, 17 for 47.

In Friday night's first semi-final contest, Palo Alto and Cubberley staged a real slam-bang local battle, with the rough and tough Cougars emerging the 42-36 winners.

The game was marred by flairs of poor sportsmanship by both ball clubs, with each team having one technical foul assessed against it.

Jimmy Kennon led Cubberley with 16 points, followed by his jumping-jack brother, Alleroy, with 10. John Pastinieks turned in a fine performance for Palo Alto, scoring 16.

The loss was Paly's first of the year against six wins. Cubberley entered Saturday's championship game with a 6-1 mark.

For Menlo-Atherton's varsity (5-3), another holiday tournament looms ahead, Dec. 29-30-31. And if things go as predicted, the Bears should be playing Camden in the championship game of Mountain View's tourney New Year's Eve.

M-A opens play next Monday against Willow Glen at 7 p.m. A win there would send them against the Los Altos-Mountain View winner at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. The Bears have already beaten both Los Altos and Mountain View soundly.

Menlo-Atherton is the tourney's defending champ, as it began last year. The Bears upset Camden in the championship game last year — and Camden is once again seeded the favorite with M-A rated second.

First round pairings: Camden vs. Hill, Palo Alto vs. Hillsdale, Menlo-Atherton vs. Willow Glen, Los Altos vs. Mountain View.

Cliff Davis Picked to Paly's 10-Man All-Tournament Team

Menlo-Atherton's Cliff Davis was named to the All-Tournament team picked last weekend at the eight-team Palo Alto Invitational Holiday Tournament.

Davis was picked to the 10-man squad on the strength of his 41 points scored in M-A's three tourney games as the Bears captured third place in the affair.

Cubberley's Cougars, runnersup in the tourney and 47-41 losers to Washington, placed both Alleroy and Jimmy Kennon on the squad.

Jefferson also placed two men on the team, high-scorers Ernie Howronn and Roy Reitz. Hillsdale's Bill Price, Marysville's Loren Hauley and Palo Alto's John Pastinieks rounded out the squad.

Only Bellarmine failed to place a man on the all-tourney team.

Block M-A Society Plays Santa Claus

The Menlo-Atherton High School Block M-A society is playing Santa Claus this Christmas to some of the area's retarded children.

The athletes, under the sponsorship of Horace Aubertine and principal Nicholas Nugent, are sending Christmas gifts, including three tricycles, to some 20 boys and girls of the Children's Health Council.

In February, the Block M-A boys, directed by David Linebarger, president, will have a party for the three-to-eight year olds of the Council.

New Quarters For Palo-Menlo Stamp Society

Stamp collectors in the Bay area are requested to visit the new meeting quarters of the Palo-Menlo Stamp Society and take part in the activities of this group.

Meetings are held every second Monday and every fourth Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the conference hall of the Palo Alto Chamber of Commerce, 725 University avenue Palo Alto.

Oak Cagers Lose Seventh Straight

Menlo College will still be seeking an elusive first victory of the season Jan. 6 when they resume basketball action against Moffett Field.

The Oaks took losses number five, six and seven squarely on the chin last weekend in the Coast Conference Basketball Tournament in San Jose.

Losing more games than anyone in the eight-team tourney, Menlo's only consolation was the placing of guard John Polhemus on the all-tourney second team. Little John scored 63 points in the three tourney games.

His running mate, former Menlo-Atherton star Corky Pegelow, scored 45 markers in the three contests. Simple statistics show that Menlo's forwards and center weren't doing much.

The Oaks took their final loss Saturday, falling before Vallejo, 69-51. Polhemus tallied 19 and Pegelow added 15 in this one. The loss gave coach Bob Wuesthoff's boys undisputed eighth place in the field of eight. Menlo lost by only two points Friday to an unseeded Reedley five, 60-58.

San Jose City College won the tourney championship by licking Diablo Valley, 61-54. San Jose's Al McKinney was chosen the tourney's Most Valuable Player.

Monterey whipped Hartnell for third place, 81-56 and Reedley took out San Mateo for the consolation honors, 78-53.

Other members of the all-tournament team were:

FIRST TEAM: Rally Rounsaville, Diablo Valley; Bill Dutton, Diablo Valley; Emmit Wilson and Jerry McConnell of San Jose.

SECOND TEAM: Ken Simmons, and Dan Ortiz, of San Jose; Allan Wimberley of Monterey Peninsula; Bill Mortensen, Diablo Valley and Polhemus, Menlo College.

John Polhemus kept Menlo within scoring distance last Thursday when the Oaks opened tourney play against Hartnell, but although the short guy dumped in 21 points, Menlo nevertheless took its fifth straight loss, 65-53.

Hartnell led 29-25 at halftime. But the Oaks were cold during the first five minutes of the second half and Hartnell moved to a 41-32 lead. Menlo was never able to get closer.

Fowler led Hartnell with 20 points.

Trojans and Wildcats Resume Cage Play After Holidays

Woodside and Ravenenswood high schools, midpeninsula cage teams in their first year of competition and therefore "left out" of the recent flurry of holiday tournaments, will resume their regular season play Jan. 5 and 6.

Coach Tom Crane's Trojans will meet Wilbur Junior High's squad Jan. 6 in a B game at Burgess gym, and the varsity Trojans will meet Woodside Jan. 9 in a Burgess game.

Prior to their meeting with Ravenswood, coach Bill Guttormson's Wildcats have a Jan. 5 meeting with Sequoia.

Ravenswood's varsity is 2-3 for the season, while Woodside has a 2-5 mark.

In B competition, Ravenswood is 4-2 for the year and Woodside is sporting a perfect 6-0 mark.

In Woodside's last outing, it took a lopsided 44-25 win over Hillsdale's jayvees, with Joe Lopez counting with 11 points.

Woodside's Bs trailed 11-10 at halftime but sparked by Dick Crawford bounced back to win their sixth straight without a blemish, 27-21.

NO SPAL GOLF THIS YEAR

There will be no golf competition within the South Peninsula Athletic League this season, it was decided at a recent meeting of the board of managers.

Individual schools will be able to conduct their own golf schedules, but not enough schools, including Menlo - Atherton, will have teams entered to constitute a league schedule.

More Evergreens:

Shrubs Are Guaranteed to Add Interest to Any Garden

Season in and season out, the plants we live with most are the evergreen shrubs. They clothe our gardens in winter and cool them in summer. They provide a permanent foundation to our houses and they screen us from a neighbor's view. But for all this, they can be oh so monotonous.

Take for instance, the gardener whose garden has that evergreen and ever-clipped privet-hedge look about it. He may like it that way, but think what just a few less common shrubs could do to add variety.

Area nurserymen suggest that the following evergreens rate wider attention. They're guaranteed to add interest to any garden.

Starting from the ground up, nurserymen list the new prostrate form of glossy Abelia. Like its taller namesake, the leaves are glossy and crisp; its blooms tubular and white, coming through most of summer. It makes an ideal ground cover.

In the 1½ to 3-foot height—ideal in foundation plantings—are Pink and Red India Hawthornes, Lily-of-the-Valley shrub and Oregon Grape.

The India Hawthornes bloom from January to summer, depending on variety. The appealing flower clusters are either pink or crimson and are followed by small blue-black fruits.

Lily-of-the-Valley shrub has distinctive pointed, almost fern-like, leaves which colors nicely eac hfal lin areas away from the coast. Its flowers resemble, as the name implies, Lilies of the Valley and come in heavy spring clusters.

Oregon Grape has glossy, holly-like leaves which often turn a beautiful red in fall. Flowers are vivid yellow in spring, followed by blue, grape-like berries.

And finally, in the 5 to 15-foot—highly interesting for its narrow folia gealone—is the Red Bottle Brush. You'll recognize the striking red blossoms in summer for their distinct resemblance to a kitchen bottle brush.

LAST MINUTE GIFT

Looking for a last minute gift? Don't overlook your local nursery as the place to find one. Whether it's a gardening friend or not, you'll find something to please him in a nursery.

Most obvious, of course, is a pot-full of color. Members of the California Association of Nurserymen report that supply is good on such gift standbys as Azaleas, Cyclamen and African violets. These have great appeal to gardeners and non-gardeners alike.

If the person you have in mind is a gardener, though, your choice is unlimited. Odds are ten to one that he has a list of "most wanted" items for his garden. Like most of us, he probably puts many things in the luxury class and promises to buy them only when he has the extra cash.

You'll find that blooming Cammelias, a Rhododendron or one of the deciduous Magnolias is apt to send even the most blase of gardeners into a rhapsodic state. If he has a terrace or deck, try him with a tub of graceful bamboo and watch his delight.

Natividad Spirit Prevails:

Festive Mexican Ornaments Decorate Lunch and Tea Room

Garlands of gay fruits and vegetables, colorful and playful pinatas of curly paper, and authentic Mexican appointments in vivid hues have enveloped the interior of the Allied Arts Guild lunch and tea room this Christmas season.

Members of the Palo Alto Junior Auxiliary, who staff the popular eating spot, have decorated the room from each individual table to the dark wooden cross beams of the Spanish-inspired landmark. The far end of the room is accented by a huge jewel - toned stained glass window depicting the Madonna and Child, flanked by festive, Mexican plates, each individually unique, while the shrine is adorned with a sculptured paper Nativity scene.

Banking the terrace walls are large red poinsettias, which also decorate the mantle of the fireplace. Brilliant small tin trees and flickering votive candles ornament each of the luncheon tables.

Many busy Christmas shoppers have taken time out from their hectic gift-buying to enjoy the delicious repast and warm glow prevailing at the Guild, and others wishing to take advantage of the atmosphere are invited to join them for lunch or tea. The Auxiliary has announced, however, that lunch and tea will not be served at the Guild during the December 24 to January 1 period. The popular lunch and tea hours will be resumed Thursday, January 2. Luncheon is served from 12 noon to 4 p.m. and tea is served during the hours of 3 to 5 p.m.

All proceeds from the lunch and tea room benefit the Stanford Convalescent Home.

COLORFUL HISTORY

Structures on the site of the Allied Arts, are thought to have existed as early as the 1840's, for as records show, travelers of that era made note of them. The trees still standing in the courtyards of the Guild are believed to have shaded many of the early Spanish Padres and wanderers traversing this region.

The first building constructed on the present Guild property, was built by members of the John Murray family in the latter 1850's. The Murrays constructed several buildings to house their dairy business, the products of which were sold in San Francisco. It has not been firmly established as to what became of the dairy, but later, in 1929, Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Merner bought some of the range acreage and created the Allied Arts Guild, to further their interest in the arts and crafts.

SPANISH-INSPIRED

Plans for the architecture of the buildings were derived from authentic Moorish and Spanish design by the Merners while on a tour of Spain. Upon their return to Menlo Park, they worked feverishly constructing the now-existing buildings with the terra cotta stone floors and walkways, mosaic exterior walls and intricate grillwork, and interior hand-hewn beams. Landscaping the beautiful courtyards proved to be monumental task but the accomplishments of that decade exist today.

Following the construction, Mrs. A. Douglas McBride, then a member of the board of directors at the Stanford Convalescent Home, began the present tea room in 1931 with the assistance of 25 young area women.

While this group served the delicacies of the Guild to the visitors, the Palo Alto Junior Auxiliary to the Home emerged to take over serving duties at the new lunch and tea room in 1932. The management of the restaurant portion of the Guild was given to the Auxiliary in 1951 as their permanent project to raise funds for the support of the Convalescent Home, and so it remains to the present time.

Menlo Park President:

New Officers Are Announced By Auxiliary for Coming Year

Members of the Palo Alto Junior Auxiliary to the Stanford Convalescent Home rely elected from their membership the new officers to head their group during the coming year.

MENLO PRESIDENT

Named as president of the volunteer organization was Mrs. Milton M. Gilmore of Menlo Park. Assisting her with the administrative duties of the Auxiliary will be Mrs. Robert W. Clark of Palo Alto, first vice president; Mrs. William E. Hughes of Menlo Park, second vice president; Mrs. Richard M. Bloise, also a Menlo Park resident, secretary, and Mrs. Benjamin M. denBoer of Palo Alto, treasurer.

Chairman of the tea group of the auxiliary is Mrs. Rudolph Scholz of Palo Alto. Other officers of that group include Mrs. J. Stuart MacIntyre of Los Altos, vice chairman and Mrs. Wendell Peterson of Palo Alto, secretary.

Chairmen of the various committees that also make up the administrations of the Auxiliary will be appointed at a later date. The officers were elected and announced at the annual Christmas party of the women's organiation held on the evening of December 16.

The Auxiliary was officially formed in 1932, with the specific purpose of maintaining the lunch and tea room at the Allied Arts Guild in Menlo Park. The Guild was then owned by the Garfield Merners who, because of their interest in the Stanford Convalescent Home, contrived the original thought of the Guild luncheroom to provide funds to aid in the support of the Home.

Members of the Auxiliary first prepared the food to be served at the Guild in their own kitchens. Later they installed the facilities necessary for the preparation and serving of the fare and took full charge of the catering on the premises.

At the present time, the Auxiliary is comprised of 200 active members, 45 associate members and 40 probationists. The provisional members of the group are announced in April of each year, and they serve a period of six months as neophytes. Before being accepted into full membership, each provisional must complete an allotted number of hours each month assisting with the functions of the lunch and tea room at the Guild, which includes the preparation of food, cooking, and serving.

Each active member serves a period of three full years before she becomes eligible for status as an associate member. Membership in the Auxiliary organization is on an invitational basis and is limited to the 200 members.

Auxiliary Contributes:

Proceeds From Guild Benefit Stanford Convalescent Home

All proceeds derived from the combined shops contained within the walls of the Allied Arts Guild, as well as those from the lunch and tea room are donated to the Stanford Convalescent Home by the two Auxiliaries that maintain the Guild, the Woodside-Atherton Auxiliary and the Palo Alto Junior Auxiliary.

The Home itself, is situated on the Stanford University campus on ground leased from the University. There is no connection between the Home and the University except proximity, for each has its own separate administration and board of directors. The nine directors of the Home receive no compensation for their service.

ORGANIZATION

Originally organized in 1919, the Convalescent Home moved to its present location in 1920, and became incorporated in 1924. It provides hospital service, nursing care, medical aid, rehabilitation and education for convalescing children on a non-profit basis.

Children at the Home are accepted from all parts of California, and are referred by private physicians, out-patient clinics and hospitals. They range in age from small babies through the teen-age years.

An additional service provided by the Home is that of instructing those attending the children in the care and nursing of the convalescents. Included are affiliated students from the Stanford University School of Nursing, and occupational therapy students from San Jose State College, Mills College and the University of Southern California.

CONTRIBUTIONS

As a contributor to the beneficial aids of the Home, the Palo Alto Junior Auxiliary donates the proceeds from its project at the Guild, and serves with the other four Auxiliaries in carrying out the Scouting program at the Home. From July of this year through September, members of the Auxiliary worked with the children instructing them in the functions and duties of the Brownies, Cubs, Girl or Boy Scouts. The Cub Scouts and Brownies at the Home were organized in 1946 and the Scout troops emerged at a later date.

This year, as their annual Christmas gift to the convalescing children, the members of the Auxiliary chose to refurbish the life-like playhouse on the grounds of the Convalescent Home. The three-room play house was a gift from the Atherton estate of Mrs. Lucy Stern and was presented to the Home in 1932.

A redwood panelled living room complete with a real, working fireplace, a sunroom and a fully equipped kitchen, with running water and electricity, comprise the floor plan of the playhouse. It is used both for education and enjoyment, and birthday parties for the children are held there monthly.

Mrs. George A. Hopiak of Palo Alto, chairman of the committee redecorating the playhouse, has arranged to have the exterior painted and has formulated plans with the other members for the remainder of the redecorating. Among those assisting her with the Christmas project are Mrs. Thomas Young of Palo Alto and Mrs. Thomas T. Whitson, who has donated custom made draperies for the playhouse.

The festive, Mexican pinatas now decorating the lunch and tea room at the Allied Arts Guild will be given to the children at the Convalescent Home by the members of the Auxiliary, to add to their enjoyment of the holiday season.

Candlelight Fashions Set By Alumnae

"Fashions by Candlelight" is the title of the fashion show which has been scheduled by members of the Alumnae of the College of Notre Dame in Belmont.

In addition to the title of the affair, they have set "Baubles, Bangles and Beads" as the theme for the showing. Featured during the affair will be casual clothes and cocktail gowns.

Mrs. George Siegfried and Mrs. Patrick Murphy, both of Palo Alto, are the co-chairmen of the event.

The annual showing will be held in Ralston Hall on the campus at 8 p.m. on the evening of Monday, February 9.

Boys Choir To Sing At Guild

The Boys' Choir of the Menlo Park Presbtyerian Church will present a program of Christmas music this afternoon, Tuesday, at the Allied Arts Guild in Menlo Park.

Time for the choral presentation has been set for 3:30 p.m. in the lunch and tea room of the Guild.

Selections chosen for the afternoon songfest will include traditional, contemporary and folk carols.

The group is composed of 25 area boys, and is under the direction of Robert M. Quade, organist and choirmaster of the Menlo Park church.

Teen Club Sets Holiday Dance December 28

A "Crystal Wonderland" will greet those attending the Holiday dance scheduled by the Pro-Deo Teen Club of Church of the Nativity in Menlo Park.

The dance will be held at the Nativity Hall on Oak Grove avenue in Menlo Park from 8:30 p.m. to midnight, and all high school and college students in the area have been invited to attend.

Decorating the affair will be a large, ornamented Christmas tree, a jolly snowman, and icicles and snow in keeping with the theme. Snowflakes, stars and gilded balloons will decorate the ceiling above the heads of the dancers.

Dance music will be played by the "Blue Tones" throughout the evening, and proper attire for the event has been listed as "dressy dress."

Officers of the teen group sponsoring the affair are Ed Ryan of Atherton, president; Nicki Furneri, Atherton, vice president; Gayle Sullivan, of Menlo Park, secretary; Richard McCarthy of Menlo Park, treasurer, and Dave Delaney, Menlo Park, sergeant-at-arms.

Tickets for the dance may be reserved by calling Gayle Sullivan at DA 5-7200, or Nicki Furneri, DA 5-5407. They may also be purchased at the door.

Refreshments will be served to those attending and a program of entertainment has also been scheduled.

Season Party Given By M-A Lanzers

Eight representatives of the Menlo-Atherton Lanzers gave a party recently for the children at the Children's Health Council, situated on the Stanford University campus.

Christmas stockings made and filled by each of the 22 members of the girls' organization were presented to each of the 22 children attending the afternoon affair. The girls served ice cream and cookies to the children of the Council and entertained them throughout the afternoon.

Pat Meek of Atherton is president of the club, which is comprised of sophomore, junior and senior students at Menlo-Atherton High School, and Ed Dixson of Menlo Park is sponsor for the group.

During the year, the Lanzers voluntarily entertain the Council children and in the spring of each year, present a fashion show for the benefit of the Council.

Arrangements for a ski trip in March are being formulated by the girls' group. They are planning the weekend as a get-together affair, to take place at a private camp in the Lake Tahoe region.

What's Doing Among Menlo's Teen-Agers

By BETH WYATT DA 5-8528

Friday, the 19th, was the date of the Social Board's annual Christmas dance. The couples danced to the dreamy band of Johnny Vaughn and his orchestra from 8:30 to 11:30 in J building. Assisting Cindy Henderson, social commissioner, were Sherry Ziegler, who handled tickets and bids; Carol Ackerman, decorations chairman; Muffy Schmitz, heading the band and entertainment committee; Anne Thomas, in charge of refreshments, and Joey Thorpe, in charge of publicity. The dance was a great success and several hundred couples attended.

Before the dance Betsy Kennedy held a going-away party for Jim Cook, who is traveling to Washington, D. C., to be a page in Congress. The dinner was held from 6:30 to 8:45 and was held at the home of a friend of Betsy's. There were hors d'oeuvres and punch followed by dinner. Chatting and having much fun were Jim Cook, Betsy Kennedy, Sue Wilson, Bucky Clark, Walker Williams, Nancy Catlin, Dan Richardson and Wendy Ford. M-A should feel quite honored . . . we have a congressman chosen from our midst.

BASKETBALL

M-A lost their second straight interleague game on Tuesday, the 16th. The opponents were Hillsdale and they beat the Bears by a score of 40 to 38. (It was the overtime that did it). This means that we have three wins and two losses to enter into the Palo Alto Holiday Invitational.

In these varsity Holiday tournaments, George Washington High is favored to win. I guess M-A will have to show critics just how wrong they are, huh? As for the Bs, they proudly boast a five-game winning streak and we know that they'll keep it up all through the holiday games! Be sure to get to as many games as you can and support our teams.

From 8 p.m. to midnight was the length of Jan Osborn's party on the 12 of December. There, were Bonnie Drury, Tom Healy, Wendy Ford, Dan Richardson, Judy Hayes, Mike Cottrell, Sue Larson, Dave Doerflinger, Midge Haried, Dan Innes, Judy Kline, Buzz McLean, Judy Norcott, Steve Horton, Ann Rovere, Dan Hirschbeck, Jan Osborn, Lee Shepardson, Dave Nelson, Judy Grover, Mark Hutchinson, Pam Barbe, Betsy Kennedy, Jim Cook, Cindy Frailey, Ed Gabrielson, Diana Dexter and Bill Summers. There was dancing and chatting and all had a marvelous time.

The couples were Pat Davis, Carl Ulrich, Linda Skaff, Roger Etienne, Judy Burton, Gerry Varty, Linda Allio, Don Morey, Cheryl Barnes, Nick Nicholas, Bonnie Bryson, Roger Burpee, Jane Benidt, Roger Patterson, Barb Buckholtz, Jeep Jones, Diane Van Epern, Tony Ford, Marilyn Pryor, Warren Warner, Judy Rowson, Darrel Farnsworth, Kathy Hareid, Bruce Forsythe, Jill Harker, Keith Jones, Cindy Henderson, Doug Hancock, Barb Maider and Mike Fahey.

They went Christmas caroling around Searsville and then returned to the Maider household for hot chocolate and much merriment.

Collegians Honored

Women's Club Fetes Mrs. L. E. Bennett

Forty-three past members of the East Palo Alto Junior Women's Club gathered recently to do honor to Mrs. L. E. Bennett, who has served as club sponsor during its 19½ years of existence.

The EPA Juniors were officially dissolved earlier this month due to lack of the membership necessary to qualify it for membership in the Federation.

Mrs. Bennett was presented with a card table and chair set.

On Dec. 9 four provisional members who had completed their three months terms were initiated into full membership in the club at a special meeting at the home of Mrs. A. O. Parker.

Plans have been made for their transfer to another club. Those initiated: Mrs. Donald Barr, Mrs. Philip Dixon, Mrs. Fred Niday and Mrs. Robert Quinones.

The group plans to hold informal meetings each month with the three remaining club members with a goal of reactivating the local club in the future. Remaining members are Mrs. John Ranier, Mrs. Marvin Bookout and Mrs. Einar Ekman.

The annual Christmas party and supper of the EPA Junior Women's Club will be held this year—despite dissolution of the club. Members and their husbands will celebrate it tonight at the women's clubhouse on Bay road.

Little House Holds Gay Yule Party

A Christmas party was held last Saturday by members of Little House, 800 Middle avenue, Menlo Park. During the evening, a program of Christmas music was presented by Ramona Rockway Grim, soprano.

Chairman of the party was Mrs. Helena Pleas, and Mrs. Gertrude Higgins and her committee decorated the senior citizen center with boughs of pine and holly, and strings of twinkling lights.

Focus of attention at the affair was the old fashioned tree which was decorated circa 1890 with cranberry and popcorn garlands and paper ornaments.

Classes have been discontinued at Little House for the holiday season and will not be resumed until Monday, January 19.

Five Little House members have been alternating in the role of Santa Claus for Menlo Park's annual Christmas celebration. This year M. J. Christensen, L. E. Weber, Fred Shindler, L. Walls and Claude McCully are continuing the tradition of having senior citizens serve as Santa Claus

A Lucky Winner . . .

. . . was Mrs. Albert DeNola of Atherton for she won the doll, "Eloise," held here by Kathy Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Drake of Menlo Park. The doll and the book, "Eloise at Christmas Time," shown by Steven Garvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley W. Garvey of Menlo Park, were presented to Mrs. DeNola by the Menlo-Atherton Nursery School, as a result of a recent fund-raising campaign staged by the mothers of the school children. The mothers also made a complete wardrobe for the doll. Proceeds from the project will benefit the building fund of the Nursery.

Association Anniversary

The Belle Haven Improvement Association celebrated its first anniversary with a pot luck dinner at the multi-purpose room, Belle Haven school with more than 100 persons attending.

Poems and humorous sayings were presented by Remelia Freeman, Robin Pratt, Tracy Carlson, Dennis Jackson and the Rev. J. J. Freeman.

George Patrick presented "surprise" awards for their help in the association to John Brockman, Mrs. Robert Chapman, Mrs. Frances West and Joseph Jackson.
